Headline:
Heavy rain in the west, turning increasingly widespread on Thursday.

This Evening and Tonight:
Heavy rain continuing across Gwynedd with occasional rain also flirting with Pembrokeshire and some coastal fringes in the west. Windy in most areas, especially in the west and over the hills where winds could touch gale force at times. Mild. Minimum temperature 12 deg C (54 deg F).

Thursday:
Rain in the west, occasionally heavy, but turning increasingly wet across the rest of the country during the morning with persistent and, at times, heavy rain. Strong winds, easing later. Maximum temperature 15 deg C (59 deg F).

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
Rain clearing to sunnier conditions and a few showers on Friday. Staying changeable over the weekend with periods of heavy rain and drier periods in-between. Windy at times. Less mild.
